

Education Leadership. The doctoral degree in education leadership provides an opportunity to enhance academic leadership skills and improve the practical use of innovative education models. The program offers three areas of concentration in leadership: PreK - 12 education, Jewish education and Higher education. Best practices, analysis, and self-reflection are emphasized to solve real problems in the workplace. Using higher order critical thinking and applied ethics, doctoral students will be prepared to handle a broad range of social, political, and economic forces impacting education today.

GOALS

Upon completion of the Ed.D. in Education Leadership, students will demonstrate the ability to:

- Implement an organizational vision pertinent to their professional practice
- Demonstrate the ability to manage the organization, operations, and resources of a Pre K -12, higher education, or Jewish education organization in a way that promotes a safe, supportive and effective learning environment
- Collaborate with all stakeholders to respond to diverse interests and needs of the community and beyond and mobilize resources to meet those needs
- Substantiate the ability to understand, respond to, and influence the larger political, social, economic, legal, and cultural context that influences education.
- Synthesize scholarly learning and prior professional experience to promote practical application.
